Oxford County Holding its Own With Other Maine Shooting Grounds—Five Deer Killed by One Man—All Waiting for Snow—News of the Gun.

(Edited by O. Warren Brown.)
The fact that more than 70 deer have been taken in Oxford county since the opening of the shooting season, four weeks ago, seems to indicate that there is just as good hunting for large game in this section of the state as in any other. Undoubtedly one reason that Arrostook or Penobscot counties lead in the number of pieces of big game taken each year is the fact that that territory is and has been more extensively advertised by the railroad companies than has the western part of Maine. Another reason that Oxford county towns don't do it is because the hunters are residents of the town and go out for a day or so only at a time. While the opinion of the writer may be inexact there is no hesitation in saying that the people of Stoneham, Sweden, Denmark, Freyburg, Andover or Bethel can ship as many deer from their villages as can Schoodic, West Sebois, Norcross or Millinocket, or Arrostook county. Proportionately, comparing the number of hunters who have taken trips into the woods of Oxford county this year with the number who have probably gone into the eastern Maine wilderness, one finds that Oxford county is holding its own pretty well in the hunting business.

Whether or not Ray Holden plugged a load of buckshot into the carcass of a deer that had already been wounded with two bullets, or whether he killed the animal with the shot from his gun is a question the hunters have been discussing, but have not decided, for the past week. The lad was with his father, Henry Holden, near the old pulp mill on Crooked river and while the elder was engaged in looking over his property the boy took his gun and went prospecting. He soon saw a deer lying apparently asleep in the field some distance from him and crept cautiously up to a fair shooting distance. Then he let a good-sized charge of buckshot slide at the animal, which did not move after being hit. A ter the carcass was taken home two holes, which some say had been made by rifle bullets, were found in the body and the supposition is that the animal had already been shot by hunters after being wounded and escaped from his pursuers and died in the field. At all events, young Holden has the credit for killing the beast.

"The man who is going into the woods to shoot a deer and to cook and eat venison of his own killing," said a Norway hunter, Monday, "should leave all his broiling and grilling utensils behind. There is only one way to cook venison in the woods or anywhere else. Heat a thick frying pan or an old-style spider upon the coals until it is almost red. Cut off thick slices of the meat and drop them in the pan right up against the dry hot surface until they are scorched on both sides. Then turn them over and butter, piling it on until the meat swims in gravy. After this, add pepper and salt to suit the taste and eat before it is cold. Cooked and served in this way venison is the best meat that grows and the man who does not like it either has trouble with his stomach or his conscience and should be watched."

Unable to extricate himself from a pile of gravel which came down with a landslide, a plump fox was taken prisoner by Cyrus Dorr at Ridgeway last week. Mr. Dorr made the capture in that section adjacent to the town of Bethel, which is known as the Back Kingdom. When he found the fox the hindquarters of the animal were covered with about two feet of dirt, and reynard, near dead of exhaustion, was exerting all his remaining strength to get from under the load. With the aid of a few hands the animal was recovered, who had rubbed all the fur off the buried parts. Now the animal has recovered his old-time vigor, thanks to being tamed and fed from the hand by Mr. Dorr.

Hear this purring of the Rumford Falls correspondent for Maine Woods: "The late Colonel Jeremiah Richardson, of Rumford Falls, who used to live on the west bank of Swift river, was known far and near as a trapper and hunter, and well he might be, for he once shot and killed two moose at one discharge of his gun, and scored in his lifetime 49 bears by shooting and trapping; and on patting his boys on their heads and relating adventures of his early days he used to say that he wasn't much of a hunter."

Ye gods and small-sized hemlock, but wasn't he a modest colonel!
On one of the late trains from Portland the other night was a party of four hunters, who had been down in Washington county. They told in loud voices of their success in the woods, and to add stress to their statements said they had taken eight deer during the shooting expedition. One of the party said two of his companions didn't get a shot at a deer, while he killed five and the other member three of the animals. This talk member three of the animals. This talk member three of the animals. This talk member three of the animals.

The hunters are eagerly looking forward to the first fall of light snow. The ground is now covered with dead leaves and it is almost impossible to make one's way through the woods without more or less noise, unless it happens to be after a rain. Snow will help matters greatly, however, and good results may be expected when it arrives. Several small snow squalls have already occurred in different parts of the country, but there has not yet been enough to effect the situation the slightest for good.

A member of the Gould academy football team which played here Saturday, brought the story down the line that while on his way home Friday night, he was nearly frightened to death by running into a deer on the main street of Bethel. He claimed that the animal could easily have been killed with a revolver, which weapon the football player didn't happen to have.

Our Schools.

Last Friday was visitation day in the upper grade of the village school of Burrham. A short sketch of the life of Longfellow was given, singing "God Knows" by the entire school; Longfellow's poems, "The Old Clock on the Stairs" was read in unison by the larger classes, and "Children's House" by the smaller classes; singing "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" by the entire school; all of which was well rendered. Then a treat of popcorn, candy and apples was passed around by the scholars. Miss Dunn is an excellent teacher and shows an interest in her school which is rarely found.

After the pains she had taken, we were sorry to see so few visitors present and among them only two mothers. We believe it a duty every mother owes to her children and their teacher to visit their schools and keep in touch with their teachers and their work. It is also a mother's duty to see that her children are in the school-room every day. If every mother would be more successful in this duty our schools would be more successful and we would feel better satisfied with the benefit we receive for the money paid out for schools. A VISITOR.

After the pains she had taken, we were sorry to see so few visitors present and among them only two mothers. We believe it a duty every mother owes to her children and their teacher to visit their schools and keep in touch with their teachers and their work. It is also a mother's duty to see that her children are in the school-room every day. If every mother would be more successful in this duty our schools would be more successful and we would feel better satisfied with the benefit we receive for the money paid out for schools. A VISITOR.

Oxford County Pomona.

The Oxford County Pomona met with the West Minot Grange, Tuesday. There was but one candidate to take the fifth degree. The sisters' half hour was devoted to discussing their resolution. That mothers have more influence over the education of their children than fathers. Sisters Bartlett, E. L. Phillips and Given of Hebron, A. P. Allen and Millett of West Minot, Hamlin of Waterford, all thought the mothers had the most influence.

Music was by West Minot Grange choir.
Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Harris, Edith and Herbert Whittemore were the committee to arrange the dinner part of the program. Beans and coffee by the local Grange and the remainder of the goodies by everybody.

Frank S. Pike, the blind brother, gave a fine music on the autoharp, also gave a song. He has a fine tenor voice and sang at his best. Mrs. Ella Rowe, Norway, gave a reading and Nellie Keene of West Minot a recitation.

Ralph E. Gould of Lisbon and S. M. King of Paris spoke on the sweet corn question. It tended towards the organization of a sweet corn growers union. Brothers J. A. Roberts, Bean, Chas. Edwards and Gould also gave their opinions. This resolution was accepted:

"Resolved, That the Maine Sweet Corn Growers' Union has our hearty commendation and that we believe the best interest of our farmers will be accomplished by the perfection of this Union so that it may be a controlling factor in fixing future prices."

The fair received a good deal of attention by S. M. Bean of West Minot, J. A. Roberts of Norway, L. C. Batesman of Lewiston, brother Prince of Buckfield and sisters Given and Allen. The ideas seemed to be that more farm products, farmers' stock, horses, poultry, fruit, etc., should go to make up a fair, and less fairs, liquor peddlers, shows and the like. Mrs. Algine Crocker gave a reading on this subject that received much applause.

The next meeting will be at South Paris.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Northern Cumberland Agricultural Society met at the Exhibition hall on the grounds of the society, president Q. M. Chute in the chair. Reports of the secretary and treasurer heard and accepted, proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year and the following officers were elected:

Pres.—Q. M. Chute.
Vice-Pres.—R. W. Fogg, Richard Cook.
Sec.—J. O. Orrin.
Treas.—Geo. F. Carlsley.

Trustees—James Thomas, Peter Jordan, C. D. Batchelder, Josiah Strout, Frank Green, F. S. Jordan, Frank Chute.
It was voted to hold another fair the coming year, dates to be given, later. The society voted to pay all premiums in full also to call another meeting of the stockholders at some date later on to make some changes in the constitution and by-laws in regard to issuing new shares.

There will be a few changes in the premium list. The society feel elated at the good show made in all the department at this year's fair, and extend their hearty thanks to all exhibitors and extend an invitation to all that contributed to the fair and all others that wish to make an exhibit to bring their exhibits as there will be room for all, and the society will use the lower hall in connection with the upper hall for exhibits another year.

Provisions will be made for another dining hall on the grounds where all can be accommodated with a good square meal for 25c, also stabling for teams at reasonable rates.

"The Women Guides of Maine."

The next issue of the ADVERTISER will contain a story on the three women guides in the state who earn a living by piloting parties of sportsmen through the forests, and to the streams visited by sportsmen. The story will be of unusual interest, because it will show that woman's work is not for the house alone, and that the followers of rod, rifle and canoe are not confined to the sterner sex.

EAST HEBRON.

The Last Ox Team.

Albert Merrill is the owner of the last old-style ox team. Each ox weighs more than 1700 lbs. He hauled his long heavy, old time loads from the intervals. Report says he has decided to sell this team. If he still holds to that mind we bid farewell to old-fashioned ox teams and long loads of hay, with no prospect of ever seeing any team unless drawn by horses hereafter.

Colds still increase in number and seem very loth to depart.
The young stock were taken home from pasture, this week.

John Freeman and Almon Haskell are still bringing in the partridges.
From E. Ryerson left for Bridgewater, Mass., two weeks ago to pass the winter. The ladies, or a few of them, met in the rain, last Tuesday, and cleaned the church.

Frank Pierce is cutting down his old apple trees and improving the looks of his fields.
More telephone poles are still called for and young men are kept busy and receive $1.50 per day.

Annual Meeting of the West Oxford Agricultural Society.

The annual meeting of this society was held at its hall in Fryeburg on Friday, Oct. 30. The following officers were chosen for the year 1903:

Pres.—J. A. Farrington, Lovell.

Porter—Sidney Walker.

A committee consisting of the secretary, W. H. Wakefield and H. D. Hamden was raised to obtain plans and estimates for a large cattle barn, which it is proposed to build during the coming year. Plans were made for improving the track and it is probable there will be a full revision of the premium list for the fair of 1903.

The committee on revision of by-laws reported through its chairman, Seth W. Rife, esq. This report was accepted.

The life membership fee was raised from $5 to $10, and the annual membership fee from $1 to $2, and there were other minor changes. The indebtedness of the society is now very small and every one is enthusiastic over its future.

The fountain and monument at the head of Portland street is nearly completed. It is proving a great attraction, and is something of which the people of Fryeburg may well feel proud. It was presented to the town by Henry Pierce of California in honor of his mother who formerly resided here. It is cut from Hallowell granite, is 7 feet square at the base and stands 18 feet high. There are water spouting places on three sides for horses, and on the fourth side will be a faucet, etc., for the accommodation of the public. The ornaments, fixtures and inscriptions will probably be added this week and water connections made. The weight of the entire structure is estimated at 30 tons.

The two brothers, William and Edwin Frost of Framingham were present at the funeral which was held at the home on High street, Sunday afternoon at 1:30, attended by Rev. F. E. All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic. "I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial, but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

SOUTH ALBANY.

Not His Fault.
There seems to be dissatisfaction among some of the people in town about the books which our supervisor, E. S. French, has ordered and delivered, in consequence of the books not being placed in the schools as soon as it was thought they should be, but the fault lies not with the supervisor, as his order was sent in as soon as the books were selected, and the writer saw the letter from the publishing company which said the books were shipped nearly four weeks before they arrived at the express office, then they were only sent to Bethel instead of to North Waterford, as the nearest express office they should have been, and it seems that there should be this explanation in justice to Mr. French and the blame placed where it belongs on the express company in delaying the books somewhere.

SNOW'S FALLS.
The Luen Manufacturing Co. by its purchases of land below the mill, now owns nearly one-half mile on each side of the Little Androscoggin river.

It owns not only the Snow's Falls but the old mill site of "Bemis Mills," where our great-grandfathers used to take grain to be ground over one hundred years ago. And also the beautiful historic elm tree, said to have been brought from Massachusetts late in the eighteenth century.

The site was now laid for another addition to this company's mill, which when completed will be over one hundred and thirty feet long and fifty-seven feet wide in its widest part.

Nearly all of the machinery for the manufacturing of flax into pure linen fibre has now arrived from the famous textile machinery makers, James Smith & Son, of Philadelphia. A John D. Long Story.
A new and pretty story about John D. Long is told in the Saturday Evening Post thus:

"In the Terminal Station at Boston is a faithful old porter who has served Hon. John D. Long for the past 25 years. He is Daniel Callahan, for 30 years in the employ of the Old Colony Road."

"Mr. Long always sits in the same section in the waiting room," says Callahan, "and he always calls me Daniel. He says, 'How are you, Daniel? Take my bag over to Fairfield, please,' referring to the part of the waiting room used by Fairfield passengers. Don't know why he takes Fairfield 'less it's because there's a Fairfield in Maine."

"I serve Mrs. Long, too, very often," says Porter Callahan. "And when I told her one day how the Secretary always sat in Fairfield she laughed and laughed. Then her face grew lovin'-like, and she looked at me with another different laugh, and she said, 'I'll sit in Fairfield, too, Daniel.'"

SOUTH ALBANY.

Not His Fault.

There seems to be dissatisfaction among some of the people in town about the books which our supervisor, E. S. French, has ordered and delivered, in consequence of the books not being placed in the schools as soon as it was thought they should be, but the fault lies not with the supervisor, as his order was sent in as soon as the books were selected, and the writer saw the letter from the publishing company which said the books were shipped nearly four weeks before they arrived at the express office, then they were only sent to Bethel instead of to North Waterford, as the nearest express office they should have been, and it seems that there should be this explanation in justice to Mr. French and the blame placed where it belongs on the express company in delaying the books somewhere.

"In the Terminal Station at Boston the faithful old porter, who has served Hon. John D. Long for the past 25 years. He is Daniel Callahan, for 30 years in the employ of the Old Colony Road.

"Mr. Long always sits in the same section in the waiting room," says Callahan, "and he always calls me Daniel. He says, 'How are you, Daniel?' Take my bag over to Fairfield, please," referring to the part of the waiting room used by Fairfield passengers. Don't know why he takes Fairfield 'less it's because there's a Fairfield in Maine.

"I serve Mrs. Long, too, very often says Porter Callahan. 'And when I told her one day how the Secretary always sat in Fairfield she laughed and laughed. Then her face grew lovin'-like, and she looked at me with another different laugh, and she said, 'I'll sit in Fairfield, too, Daniel.'"

A Jolly Husking Season.
Now is the season of huskings, and among those which we have heard of was one at Joseph Pitts in South Harrison, and another at M. E. Wilbur's on Maple Ridge. Each one called out a large number of people and "a jolly good time" is reported.

B. F. Stanley & Son have erected (for storage) during the past summer and it is a very convenient building. It is 50x36 in size, one story high with a deep basement which is level with the ground on the west end. This basement is constructed as to be fire proof and has a very large storage capacity, and the fruit can be stored loose in pens provided for the purpose or in barrels, and there is ample convenience for packing. The main floor furnishes a spacious work and packing room, and in the loft is a large space for storing barrels. In the basement the Stanleys have some 250 barrels of apples now stored, and a neighbor has a large quantity. Mr. S. has sent away a part of his crop. During the past season he has sprayed his trees, and believes that it is a paying operation. The fruit from the sprayed trees, while not entirely free from worms is much better than a lot near by which came from trees equally as good which were not sprayed.
